EITINGON COMPANY PLANS TO RESUME OPERATIONS SOON

No Statement Issued Regarding Whether Bristol Plant Will Reopen

ORDER IS SIGNED

Authorize Firm To Accept Offer of $1,500,000 In New Capital

Good news to residents of this area is contained in dispatches to the effect that the Eitingon Company is to resume operations before March 28th. In the announcement, it is not stated whether the Bristol plant of the company will resume operations but the company in general will resume activities.

The Eitingon Company, until a few months ago, operated the plant of the Bristol Processing company here, employing between 600 and 800.

Referee Irwin Kurtz Tuesday in New York signed an order authorizing Mott Eitingon, Inc., for dealers and processors, to accept the offer of $1,500,000 in new capital and to operate the business under the supervision of a committee designated by the lenders, contract holders, note holders and general creditors.

The action was taken at a meeting of creditors held at the United States Court House in New York, where it was disclosed that the lenders are the Public National Bank and Trust Company, the Edmund Wright Ginsburg Corporation and the United Shearling Corporation. Each will contribute one-third of the loan. All are creditors of the company.

The lenders' offer was set forth in a letter addressed to Mott Eitingon, Inc., as debtor-in-possession. Annexed was an outline of the proposed arrangement and a statement of the basis for the interim operation of the company.

Under the terms of the offer, the lenders are willing to advance the $1,500,000 prior to confirmation of the arrangement in order to enable the company to resume operations quickly. It is expected that the money will be immediately advanced once the lenders' conditions are met and operations resumed on an interim basis before March 28, the latest date fixed by the lenders. With this in mind, Referee Kurtz set the morning of April 1 as the date of the next meeting of creditors.

THE TRAVEL BOOM

According to the Department of Commerce American tourists spent $430,000,000 last year in foreign countries—only $53,000,000 below the total in the peak year, boom-time 1929. At first glance, it is startling to think that tourist travel reached such a level so soon after the end of the war. Moreover, great many of the countries to which Americans flocked in 1929, such as France, Germany, England, Belgium, Italy, etc., were still closed to tourists in 1946.

returned yesterday in the case of Herbert Davies, 75, of Newtown, against John P. Cole, deceased. This was an action in trespass growing out of an automobile accident. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney Charles B. Ermentrout, and the defendant (insurance company), by Attorney Webster S. Achey.

GETS $850 VERDICT

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 13—John H. Luecht, Easton, bowling alley operator, was awarded a verdict for $850 for personal injuries received in an automobile accident on the Bethlehem Pike four miles south of Quakertown on Sept. 1, 1945, following a trial in civil court here before Judge Fred W. Davis, of Stroudsburg. The defendant was James Paul Dalton, of Perkasie RD.

"We will ask the jury which one of the four defendants is responsible for this accident, or how many are responsible," Attorney Achey informed the jury. The plaintiff claims that no danger barriers or warning signs were erected near the hole.

Otto Stompler, Langhorne Manor, superintendent for the Langhorne Spring Water Company, called by the plaintiff, testified that when he and his men were through with the job they had to do on Feb. 12, 1941—installing curb boxes—that the flagstone pavement in question was in apparent good condition and there was no hole there, at that time.

Members of the jury: Walter L. Allem, Doylestown; George B. Green, Morrisville; George W. Hibbs, Bristol RD 1; Harlow D. Thayer, Weisell; James McDevitt, Bristol; Ervin B. Seyert, Bristol; Walter Y. Leedom, Davisville; William T. Peters, Davisville; Earl R. Hartman, Morrisville; Matthias Baer, Bristol; Philip H. Krier, Morrisville; and R. Walker Worstall, Newtown RD 1.

Thirty-six jurors were called from which to select the jury in this case and all the women called were challenged.

Takes Daily Dip in Frigid Water of the Neshaminy

It makes no difference whether the temperature is 50 or 10, according to Archie. "One day I had to push the ice aside so I could get into the water."

This is the first winter that Archie has carried out his daily swimming program. "But I remember once, when I was about eight years old, going in swimming in the middle of the winter when we lived in Maine. If my mother had found out about it she would have 'skinned me alive,'" he commented. Brewer was about five or six years old when he learned to swim, and living near the ocean in Maine he enjoyed the salt water often.

One of Archie's rules is not to overeat; another is not to wear too many pieces of clothing at one time. "I never wear anything but a pair of trousers, shirt, socks and shoes," he says. When the weather gets cold, I merely put on a heavier shirt." The shirt he wore one day this week when the temperature was 46 degrees above zero, and when most people were wearing overcoats, was of gabardine and light-weight corduroy. "I never wear a sweater, top coat or hat," he commented. "Occasionally I wear a suit coat."

Archie, who marked his 27th birthday anniversary on Tuesday, "celebrated" by lounging in the sun on a coping overlooking the Neshaminy, wearing only trunks, and drinking in the sunshine while the mercury stood at 46. "The tide is out" was his explanation for not taking a dip that day.

The young man, whose weight is 146 lbs., says he has never felt any ill effects from his swimming routine, or from not wearing a top-coat. "Nine out of 10 catch colds because they wear too much clothing," is his explanation. "The slightest draft affects them."

Every morning, before breakfast, Archie says his practice is to exercise for 15 to 20 minutes in his own back yard on Lee street, Philadelphia, wearing trunks and shoes.

"Dorothy, my wife, doesn't share my enthusiasm for setting-up exercises in the cold, so I have to do it alone," he comments.

Recent pictures snapped by friends show Archie resting on a snow bank.

A former navy man, with the rating of Storekeeper 3/c, Brewer served in the South Pacific for over a year. He is employed in the cold laboratory at the Philco plant, having worked here since last June. Previous to his naval service he worked in one of the plants of that firm in Philadelphia.

The Great Game of Politics

and various others of a similarly unsavory flavor, they have been screaming their heads off about a "return to Warren Gamaliel Harding," shrilly warning that "black reaction" is about to grip us. And all our "social gains" are to be taken away by political Neanderthal men without conscience, intelligence or shame. This, of course, is extremely silly stuff—but typical.

WHEN examined, the causes for such frantic absurdities are clear. They are, first—that the Republicans are preparing heavily to cut the budget, thus reducing the swollen size of the Federal bureaucracy; second—they are preparing to enact regulatory and restrictive labor legislation. Apparently, the prospect nearly drives the left-wing propagandists wild. From their standpoint, to cut down the size and cost of the Government or to lay a restraining hand upon a labor leader is wicked and indefensible, anything favored only by a reactionary "Old Guard."

THIS is what they mean when they beat about "Warren Gamaliel Harding" and "black reaction." It is to ward off these two things that amounts to a smear campaign is being directed against Senator Taft, who is the most influential Republican in Congress quite determined to do these two things before the session adjourns. Only the more radical of the former New Dealers dispute that they were practically ordered by the voters in the last election. At the moment, an effort is being made to bury Mr. Taft for allegedly having committed such terrible blunders as to destroy his leadership and kill his chances for the presidency.

NO opportunity to weaken him is neglected. The handful of publicity-seeking, left-wing Republican senators who are opposed to effective labor legislation and mouth the CIO charges, are depicted as broad-minded and progressive. Every natural difference of opinion is played up as a sensational split. Of course, Senator Taft does seem unconsciously to co-operate in supplying his enemies with ammunition, making trouble for himself. For example, if he wanted to vote against Lillenthal that was his privilege but he did not have to make a long statement about it. Nor did he have to proclaim the Neurath verdicts a "miscarriage of justice," nor did he have to speak as well as vote against the terminal war proposal.

THERE are a number of things of this kind Mr. Taft has done which he did not have to do and which few men in his position would have done. But that is Mr. Taft. That is the way he is made, and though at times it is possible to deplore his judgment, it isn't possible to deny his honesty and courage. Right now the virulence of the attack on him has, perhaps, created a misleading impression. The facts are that strongly as he is being assailed, Mr. Taft's leadership has not been destroyed, nor are his chances for the presidential nomination very different from what they were. He is still the only man capable of a real convention fight against Governor Dewey, who, concededly, is in the lead.

THE Republican party has not made its record in this session—but it has plenty of time to do the two things to which it is most deeply pledged. And the criticism of its speed is unfounded. It is fully up to the mark of preceding Congresses. Usually, it takes from three to four months for the major bills to be enacted. In the end, if the record is good, it will help Mr. Taft's prospects; if it is bad, it will hurt them. Meanwhile, Senator Taft is the target—and you can't be a target for long without being hit. There are, however, two things which may sustain the Senator. One is that he is not apt to be hit in a vulnerable spot because the two main things to which he is dedicating his efforts are favored by a very large majority of the people.

THE other is that the animus of his assailants is as obvious as their allegations are extravagant. Perhaps, before next year Senator Taft and the Republican party will fall on their faces. But they have not done so yet—and the present burial services are premature. It should also be recalled that the very men who are now gleefully writing the political obituary of Senator Taft, a few months ago buried very deeply, indeed, President Truman, whose recent access to strength among the people they are now engaged in pointing out. There is food for thought in that for all concerned.

RODGERS JUST FAILS TO DEADLOCK THE SCORING RECORD

Speedy Forward of Hibernian Five Rolls Up 24 Points in Game

FINAL SCORE IS 59 TO 31

Badenhausen Falls Victim To the Fast Game of Bristol Team

"Johnny" Rodgers, speedy little forward of the Hibernian basketball team, fell one point short of deadlocking the individual scoring record of the Bristol Basketball League last night when he scored 24 points to aid his club to defeat the Badenhausen team, 59-31, on the Rohm and Haas court.

The record is held by "Bill" Peterman who scored 25 points in a single contest early in the season. However, Peterman played the full game on the night he scored his points while in the third quarter of last night's tilt, Rodgers was resting on the bench.

Joe Quigley scored 17 points in the triumph while Joe Pebani led the losers with 10 points.

Mingin was the whole show as he scored 17 points in the first half. However, he was missing in the second half and only registered three field goals.

"Bill" Petrick was high for the losing quintet with 10 points.

THE STATE BUDGET

As for the state, every item of cost is higher than it was two years ago—wages, salaries, supplies, building materials, etc., etc. Naturally, the whole cost of government cannot fail to reflect these higher prices.

As to the question of the surplus left in 1945, the quickest way to ease that stumbling block out of the arguments is simply to treat it as having been spent or earmarked. That is what happened to it—what has to happen with any such surplus under state laws.

Pennsylvania's laws covering financial matters have several points which confuse many people, because they differ greatly from the practices of most business houses.

One such point is that the state Constitution does not provide for the sort of continuing surplus which every business firm and for that matter, every home—takes for granted. Whatever is left over at the end of any biennium, unless spent or earmarked, is thrown back into the state's General Fund as current revenue. There, under the budget laws, it would presumably reflect itself in reduced taxes.

Much of the 1945 surplus is gone. Some $48,000,000 went to retiring General State Authority bonds. Other items have been spent for improvements. Still another sum is set aside for future projects. And a great deal of the surplus is in special funds, such as Motor, Fish, and Game, where it can be used only for specific purposes.

One of the big differences between the financing of the State and of a private business is that in the main the state can borrow money only under bond issues ratified by the people.

What this means is that so-called "capital" expenditures, that is, buildings and the like which are permanent improvements of which many future years will also get the benefit, often have to be charged off against a single budget just as though they were current expenses.

Mingled in the state budget are operation, maintenance and capital charges. Capital charges, incidentally, are especially high at the present time, because the war and recent scarcities have piled up a back-log of delayed work. What this means is that the total budget figure does not accurately represent the rise in actual operation costs; this has gone up, but less than the budget might indicate.

Pennsylvania stands in a special position, by comparison with other states, in another respect. That is that a much larger share of all non-Federal costs of government have been saddled on Harrisburg than in any other comparable state.

Relief is a conspicuous example. Pennsylvania is the only state where counties do not help bear the cost of public assistance.

Again, in the matter of costs of education, which is a burning budget problem at the moment because of the demand for higher salaries for teachers, the state's share in Pennsylvania has jumped from 23 per cent of all school costs in 1940 to 40 per cent in the new budget. This is a faster rate of transfer to the state government than is going on in most comparable states.

Again, Pennsylvania, with some 40,000 miles of state highways, has about three times as much of a highway burden as would be the case if the practices elsewhere obtained here. Harrisburg has the responsibility of possibly 25,000 miles of roads which might be under county support.

There are innumerable other fields in which Harrisburg is carrying the freight. "Weights and measures" is not universally a state function, but in Pennsylvania is a charge against the Department of Internal Affairs. Registration of births and deaths might have been left to counties, but is handled by the State's Health Department. And so on down the line.

For many years, presumably with the support of the Commonwealth's electorate, the burden has been shifted more and more to Harrisburg. Pressures to speed up this trend continue strong. Whether it is good or bad is beside the immediate point; which is that, if Harrisburg is to do more and more for the people, it is going to cost more and more to run the State government.

On the other hand, the constantly upward trend of state spending, and hence of state taxes, is a matter of the gravest concern to many individuals both in and outside the State government.

Members of the legislature have made several earnest studies, reflecting their alarm. One governor after another has resisted, with greater or less success.

As is fairly generally understood, there is a sort of automatic ceiling on state taxes. On at least one occasion, a State administration "broke through" this ceiling, with disastrous results. This was during the Earle Administration, when a series of "emergency" taxes, most of them levied on business, started a flight of industry outside the state.

As a home for industrial concerns, in most lines of production Pennsylvania is in direct competition with other states; many of which (perhaps as a result of lower standards) have much smaller tax rates. Taxes are a direct part of the overhead cost of doing business; this is true to some extent of all taxes, since even the non-business varieties eventually must reflect themselves in the payrolls.

Any increase in the tax-differential between Pennsylvania and her competitive sisters—and likewise any tax changes which appear to show a continued and growing future differential—are bound to result in industrial concerns closing their doors in this state and opening elsewhere where tax costs are lower.

There is a problem here calling for the ablest judgment of the shrewdest state leadership.

A TOTAL OF 85 ISSUED

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 13 — The oldest bridegroom to apply for a license to wed last month came from Bristol. He gave his age as 71 and his bride-to-be gave her age as 50. Other elderly couples to apply included three men in their sixties.

"Cupid was not on the job during the month of February," stated Deputy Clerk of Orphans' Court Joseph B. Keating, of Bristol, when asked by a reporter how many marriage licenses were issued during the Valentine month. The total number of licenses granted is 85. That is one of the poorest months of business the Orphans' Court has had in many months.

In comparison with last February's total of 120 licenses, there has been a decided drop in business. Only 45 licenses were issued in February, 1945, during the war. Sixty-nine couples applied in the same month of 1943. In both 1944 and 1939 there were a large number of February licenses issued—150 and 166, respectively.

There was a decrease in the number of teen-age brides and bridegrooms applying. Only three boys and 14 girls in their teens applied. The youngest couple was a 17-year-old bridegroom and his 16-year-old bride, both residents of Doylestown.

Divorces seem to be on the increase with 17 women and 12 men, who were formerly married, applying for licenses to remarry.

The average age of female divorcees was 24; and 36 for the males.

A large number of the couples were non-residents of Bucks county.

PENNSYLVANIA FARM ROUNDUP

By Suzanne Flick

(I. N. S. Penna. Farm Editor)
HARRISBURG, Mar. 13—(INS)—Pennsylvania farm organizations today planned a campaign to persuade communities to retain Eastern Standard Time throughout the year.

The State Grange argued that not only daylight saving time was illegal under a law enacted in 1923 but it threw farmers off schedule and made them lose an hour of working time.

"Cows cannot be taught to adjust their mealtimes and the elements cannot be changed to speed up evaporation of dew from the fields an hour earlier during the summer," explained Secretary Joab K. Mahood.

The farm routine is regulated more by nature than by man," he added, "and farmers have to follow nature's schedule."

He said he planned to talk the matter over with the State Chamber of Commerce, which takes annual polls of time-changing towns, to see if he could win its support.

So far as the Legislature is concerned, nothing can be accomplished there, he asserted, because the problem lay in enforcement. Communities setting their clocks ahead an hour in the spring were simply "bootlegging" time, he charged.

The proposed one-cent a bushel tax on apples has failed to rally the support of most agricultural interests. Sponsored by Rep. George A. Gooding (R) York, who resides in the heart of Pennsylvania's fruit belt, the proposal reportedly had not been endorsed by fellow growers. Revenues from the levy would be earmarked for promotion purposes by a special State Apple Board.

A record number of 1,721,000 cattle are stabled on Pennsylvania farms.

The State Agriculture Department reported dairy cows totaled 1,000,000, an increase of 10,000 over last year's herds. The increase was attributed to a seven per cent gain in heifer calves and a one per cent rise in the number of cows and heifers reserved for milk production.

Approximately 500 veterans were enrolled in farm training courses in Pennsylvania under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

The Department of Public Instruction reported the enrollment had grown slightly this year and predicted registrations would show greater increases within a year. The Department certifies vocational schools and farms where apprentices can be trained.

Student-farmers acquire scientific backgrounds for the agricultural business at schools and put their knowledge into practice in the field under the guidance of farm operators.

Pennsylvania State College has reported good attendance at the series of short courses offered farm folk by the agriculture school. A large percentage of the students were veterans, it was added.

February Was 4 Degrees

The lowest mark on the thermometer which the mercury struck here during February was four degrees above zero. The temperature range was from four to 55 degrees, the average for the month being 29.2. Highest daily range was 43 degrees and lowest daily range was six.

Precipitation for the month totalled 1.82 inches, with one inch the greatest in any 24 hour period.

Per cent of possible sunshine hours was 57.3. There were during the month of February 13 clear days; seven partly cloudy; eight cloudy; and four on which measured precipitation was .01 inch or more.

FARMERS ALSO GOING THROUGH 'ADJUSTMENT'

County Farm Agent Says They Must "Brace Selves" For Things Ahead

LESS MILK IS USED

Advice given by Bucks County farm agent William F. Greenawalt to farmers who were guests of Doylestown Kiwanis Club this week was that "Farmers must get themselves braced for some of the things that are coming along or else they will want to know what hit them."

The farmers' night dinner speaker was presented by Kiwanian Arthur Gross, chairman of the agricultural committee. He pointed out that farmers are, like others, going through a period of adjustment, and that "some things are hard to take."

"You cannot unbalance one branch of agriculture without affecting all branches," County Agent Greenawalt pointed out.

He particularly referred to the unbalancing of the agricultural activity on the Delmar Peninsula—the broiler center of the world—and how it affected all other branches of agriculture.

Mr. Greenawalt also said that in his opinion it was a mistake to increase the price of milk. He said that more milk was produced after the one cent increase, but the consumption decreased. Lots of people are not using as much milk as they did before, he said.

Speaking of Bucks county farm products particularly, Mr. Greenawalt said the county stands sixth in the United States in poultry and eggs, seventh in vegetables and about 50th in dairy. The 4,000 farms in Bucks county raise a lot of produce, he said.

Bucks county stands eighth in the production of carrots, but the County Agent said that unless a new variety of carrot is produced by some seed company to offset the popularity and sales appeal of the new California carrot, this business will fall way off in the county and the carrot acres will have to be planted in some other vegetable.

Greenawalt said that he did not like the nation-wide publicity the price of hogs received last week, but admitted the pork situation is rather bad, "although the farmer is not to blame." Fifty percent of the meat consumed in the United States is pork and pork products, he said.

In Bucks county, the speaker said, the average sized farm is 60 acres. Three things are in line in Bucks county, he said — acreage, manpower and the livestock program.

Bucks county vegetable growers, he said, are producing on the average of two crops per year.

Mr. Greenawalt told Kiwanians and their farmer-guests that "the livestock on the farm is pretty near a criterion of the standard of living in this country."

President John Mason called attention to the club members that the Doylestown club won the highest honor in the 13th division for the month of January in the club action.

THE CAPITOL WHIRL

A Digest of Things Political Occurring At Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Mar. 13 — Dr. M.

Louis Rutherford, of Philadelphia a deputy state attorney general, not only is one of the most capable women in government circles, but she also is an "admiral in the Nebraska navy." An organization similar to Kentucky's "colonels," she has a "commission" from Nebraska hanging in her office in which she is pledged the loyalty of "11 officers, seamen, tadpoles and goldfish." There is some sentiment in certain quarters to put her on the bench and it would not be objectionable to some women's organizations and lawyers if she was named to the superior court vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Thomas J. Baldwin.

Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (D) Dauphin, Pennsylvania's state Republican chairman, was expected to make his first appearance in legislative halls during the 1947 session when Gov. James H. Duff presents his budget message March 10. Taylor was hospitalized in December and has since been confined to his home with the exception of a quick trip to the governor's office this week. It was his first conference with Governor Duff. Taylor was unable to attend Duff's inauguration due to an operation for a leg ailment which induced a pulmonary condition.

Former president pro tempore of the upper chamber, Taylor was not expected to seek his old title. Sen. Weldon B. Heyburn (R) Delaware, was elevated to the president pro tem's seat from that of majority floor leader in January, but it was with the understanding that he would step down upon Taylor's return. The Dauphin county leader, who will be 71 in June, was believed ready to relinquish permanently his senate leadership. Prior to his illness, he was one of the busiest politicians on capitol hill, accustomed to keep such a large schedule of daily appointments that most of his office personnel was unable to keep tabs on him.

Rep. D. Raymond Sollenberger's sponsorship of the teachers' wage boost legislation, establishing mandated $2,400 minimum salaries, has piqued the state school commission. It was the second time the Blair county Republican has jumped the gun on the commission, of which he is a member, in taking a stand on the instructors' wage issue. He was co-sponsor of teachers' pay boost measure two years ago. The agency was expected to recommend either a lower permanent minimum salary than Sollenberger, possibly $2,000 to $2,200, or temporary increases. The commission felt the legislator should have shown first loyalty to it by awaiting its recommendation before making his own. The commission has been endeavoring for months to agree on raises, subsidies and revenue sources to foot the bill, but decided to hold back in order to not counter proposals of Gov. James H. Duff. Sollenberger is a teacher in Williamsburg.

The 1947 session of the general assembly has been free of chronic absenteeism which delayed action during some of the past legislative meetings and was one of the biggest headaches of floor leaders. A few members of the house and senate generally break away early on the last day of weekly sessions, but

DEPENDABLE EQUIPMENT FOR FARM AND GARDEN

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

COCOANUT EGGS—all cocoanut, with just enough luscious syrup to hold the cocoanut together! Moreover, the eggs are covered with an excellent grade of chocolate. You'll find them in the Snellenburg Candy Dept. You may order them ahead to be sent to yourselves or others, at any date you specify. Half-pound eggs cost 50¢ and pound eggs cost $1. There's a wonderful "Easter mix," too, consisting of crystallized creams, crystallized jellies, and chocolate-covered creams, in the shapes of eggs, bunnies, chicks, etc. Put these in the Easter bonbon dishes or in the Easter baskets. Only 59¢ a pound. (1st fl.)

"TAILLEUR TOWNS"—the cleverest of suit hats and spring coat companions, have a Bar all their own, in the second floor Snellenburg Millinery Dept. The felts are softly molded; the bars, those that the best dressed women approve. With all this, "Tailleur Town" prices are reasonable, namely, $5 to $11.75. Try on the many flattering models until you find one, or even two, that seems just made for you. Don't be one of those females who wear the same hat day after day, week after week! (2nd fl.)

EASTER GLOVES, at their snowiest and smartest, are now selling in the Snellenburg Glove Dept. There are adorable, washable, doe-finished, white lambskin shorties at $4.98, also capeskins. Or perhaps you'd like the bright capeskins, in such colors as pink, blue, kelly, red, etc., same price. The fine, double-woven cottons, in two, four, and six button lengths, mostly hand-made, will also be very popular this season. At Snellenburg, they range in reasonable priceings from $1.98 to $2.98. This Glove Department carries practically all the top brands of "handwear." These Easter gloves for ourselves, or for gifting, are an excellent investment for the well dressed. (1st fl.)

SPRING NYLONS, in a complete range of gauges, and in all the new shades, await us in the Snellenburg Hosiery Dept. Prices range from $1.35 to $2.50, sizes from 8½ to 10½. Buy two or, better, three pairs at a time to get that "extra pair" wear from your purchase. Remember, too, that nylons rival gloves for Easter gifting. (1st fl.)

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Courier:
I read with great interest the dates and location of the play-off games of your league. The location is Bristol High School court, and the dates fall on Tuesday and Thursday.

The change from the regular season playing nights and site was brought about because the league wanted to charge admission; this they cannot do on the Rohm & Haas court.

This is very good for the league, but how about the fans and the players. They are of paramount importance—without them there would be no league.

One reason lies behind this change—to make more money. Will the league make more money? I doubt it!

Some major reasons for fans and players disagreeing with the present plan are:

1. The fans want to see the teams at full strength. Two teams will be weakened under the present plan. The players don't like this. Not only the weakened teams, but the other teams would not get any satisfaction out of beating a weak sister.

2. The games have been played on R. & H. court all season. The players will show a better brand of ball there than on a strange court. The High School court is narrower, bunches the players, and the result is a stopper game.

3. Many of the loyal fans can afford the usual twenty-five cents donation, but will give no more.

4. Transportation to the R. & H. court is no problem. If a ride is not available, a bus stops at the front door.

5. The three final games are on successive nights; this affects the players' showing, and is too much.

basketball for a local fan to digest. I think the officials and managers should get together and reconsider, showing due consideration to the players and fans.

Sports have had a tough time surviving in Bristol in the past; maybe this is an inkling to the reason. Could it be that we are forgetting the fans and players, and worrying too much about the money. Consider the players and fans and the money will take care of itself.
